Cinemas & Movies

So when you are aboard ship, do try to catch up on that movie or old blockbuster you missed first time around. What are your options?

Well some ships have a dedicated cinema; some have a screen outside and most have a movie channel on the TV or a DVD library.

There may be a fee which is charged to your on-board account, or in some case the viewing may be complimentary.

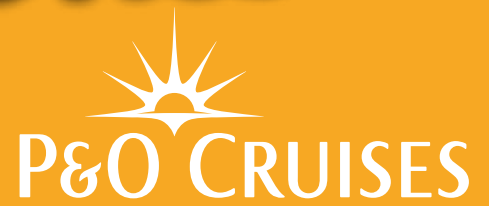

You will find details in your cabin and/or on the daily newspaper produced by your cruise line, but hopefully this guide will help a little, and if you have any questions don't hesitate to speak to the reception on-board your ship.

Best for Cinemas & Movies is...

P&O CRUISES

Seascreen on Azura

Although they come very close to Disney Cruise Line, both have a dedicated cinema on 4 of their ships. However with P&O Cruises you have the choice of an adult-only ship.

P&O Cruises have dedicated cinemas on Arcadia, Aurora and Oriana. Azura has a Seascreen – an outdoor screen in the pool area.

Although there isn't a DVD library available with P&O Cruises, there are movies on the TV for you to enjoy in the comfort and privacy of your cabin.

There are other venues on board P&O Cruises' ships where movies are shown; The Curzon Lounge on Adonia, The Malabar on Azura and the Theatre on board both Ventura and Oceana.

P&O Cruises cater for movie lovers while at sea. So relax and enjoy a movie whether you like a romantic love film or an action-packed adventure film, there will be something for you on board.
